

"Celebrating My Career Dreams"

I had often considered the path
That I should take for my career,
A career that would fulfill my passions
Year after passing year.
A career that would supply for my needs
And give me immense pleasure from day to day,
A career that would inspire me as a person
And guide me on life's way.
A career where I could often lead
And on some days just follow,
A career that would make my life whole
One filled, not empty and hollow.
A career where I could help
Those who need an extra lift,
And then inspire those around me
That Life is our true and only gift.
A career where each day is different
And adventures lie within my reach,
A career where I could listen and learn
But also have opportunity to give and to teach.
A career that stresses the importance of family
And gives back to the community at large,
A career that encourages standing on one's two feet
And stepping up to take charge.
A career that leads by example
And not by mere words,
A career that offers creativity
And allows all opinions to be heard.
A career that promotes differences
In each and every man,
But embraces togetherness
As we rise to take a stand.
A career that is not just a job
But a dream in the making,
And finding the right one
Is worth all the risks that you'll be taking.
I'm celebrating my career dream
As my journey unfolds each day,
For I'm a school teacher –
What more can I say.
