

Find Your Voice, Change Your World

Days move on; I'm so small.
In the scheme of life, do I matter at all?

Slowly I start to see,
My role in this thing called humanity.

Set before me is a choice:
I can close my lips forever,
Or speak out with my voice.

If I don't, who else will?
There is a job I must fulfill.

I open my mouth to speak,
But suddenly, I grow weak.

Why should I break out?
I want to whisper,
But I'm called to shout.

Yes, only you can make the difference;
The world waits for your conviction.

Find the inspiration to be the light
In the murky darkness of the night.

One person at a time,
We can change humankind.

Carpe diem! Live the present;
It's a gift before you of omni essence.

This is your role and decision.
You are in control.
Find your voice and fulfill your mission.

-Audrey Sutherland