

*In more than a decade of public sector service,
I've come to appreciate those advocates who understand the value of balancing expertise with artful compromise.
And I'm going to let you
in on how they do it.*

ABOUT

LUKE CRUMLEY

Politics is frustrating. Real people feel disconnected from the system and their representatives. More than ever, those real people need to be empowered to become part of what's possible when they choose to show up for the causes that matter to them.

Voted by his peers as one of the top professionals in the advocacy industry, Luke is an award winning lobbyist, fundraiser, and grassroots advocacy strategist. For nearly a decade, he advised members of Congress on community engagement and the impact of policy on local neighborhoods.

Luke is committed to helping individuals and organizations understand how they can thrive through the challenging work of advocacy. He trains passionate volunteers to show up more effectively in politics by becoming brilliant in the basics of engagement.

Prior to his work in the political arena, Luke served as a commissioned officer in the United States Marine Corps - and he remains committed to promoting the interests of veterans across the country.
